

College of Business Students Accepted by Economic Scholars Program

RUSTON, La. Research papers by two College of Business students, Dakota Oxford (Finance), and Bailey Semmens (Economics), were accepted by the Economic Scholars Program, an annual conference for undergraduate research. The ESP is sponsored by the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas to foster the involvement of undergraduate students in all facets of research. Student scholars and faculty from institutions across the U.S. and Canada will come together to share undergraduate student-initiated works. Mr. Oxford and Ms. Semmens will be presenting their research at the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas on April 1.
